Pursuant to a congressional request, GAO reviewed the Office of Child Support Enforcements (OCSE) management of the child support enforcement program, focusing on OCSE progress in: (1) strengthening its partnership with state and local child support enforcement programs; (2) achieving national program goals; (3) improving assessment of state program results; and (4) redesigning the federal incentive funding structure for improved state performance. GAO found that: (1) OCSE is making progress in reorienting its management of the child support enforcement program toward program results; (2) OCSE and the states have approved 5-year national goals and objectives for increasing the number of paternities established, the number of support orders obtained, and the amount of collections received; (3) OCSE has also negotiated voluntary performance agreements with states specifying intended program results; (4) OCSE audits continue to focus on state compliance rather than on state progress in achieving program goals because of a lack of performance measures, the absence of penalties for poor-performing states, and limited staff resources; (5) the OCSE federal incentive funding structure, which is based on maximizing child support collections relative to...

Reviews

An incredibly amazing ebook with perfect and lucid answers. It is written in basic terms and never difficult to understand. It's been written in an exceptionally basic way and it is only right after I finished reading this ebook in which it in fact modified me, affected the way I really believe.
