The strong sense and indignant satire of this little poem might yet be turned to account if the parasite could feel shame, or the table-bulfoen be awakened to a sense of honour by the pity, scorn, and insulting applause with which his degrading fooleries are received. To Alphonso Ferrabosco, on his book. This person, descended of Italian parents, was born at Greenwich in Kent: he was much admired, both at home and abroad, for his excellent compositions, and fancies, as they were then called, in music; he was principally employed in setting the songs to music in our poet s masques. Vn.sL. Jonson appears to have had an extraordinary regard and atfection for this excellent composer. He delights to mention him upon all occasions; and in...
