UNITARIANISM, ITS MISSION AND ITS MISSIONARIES The most ancient phase of Christianity is the Unitarian. The name was born in the last century, but the thing itself was born in the first. If cardinal doctrines are taught by Christ, its ideal life is exemplified by him, and when he asked the Pharisees why of themselves they judged not what was right, he asserted that Unitarian spirit of free, yet reverent, inquiry which we apply alike to the Old Testament and the New. All the higher forms of the earlier faiths of humanity we can in spirit lay claim to. Every Monotheist is a member of our church. He is a catechumen being trained for initiation into the holier mysteries. Abraham s simple piety of the heart, and the speculative theology of the Greek schools, pointed to the position we occupy. The patriarch s belief that the gods of the nations were not without power, was held consistently with a faith in the supremacy of the one Jehovah; and though poets and philosophers often laughed at the multitudinous deities of the vulgar; still, under one name or another, they clung to the thought of a sovereign Zeus. There is one God, the early Christian Fathers said, and the middle age schoolmen echoed. Many metaphysical bubbles were blown and burst respecting the mode of his existence, but out of Unity the theories came, and back to it they returned. Even the Athanasian Creed, labouring, as...
